Guideline 2.3.8 - Performance - Accurate Metadata

Issue Description

The app name displayed on app marketplaces and the app name displayed on the device do not sufficiently match, which makes it difficult for users to find apps they have downloaded. These names do not need to match exactly, but they need to be similar to avoid confusion.

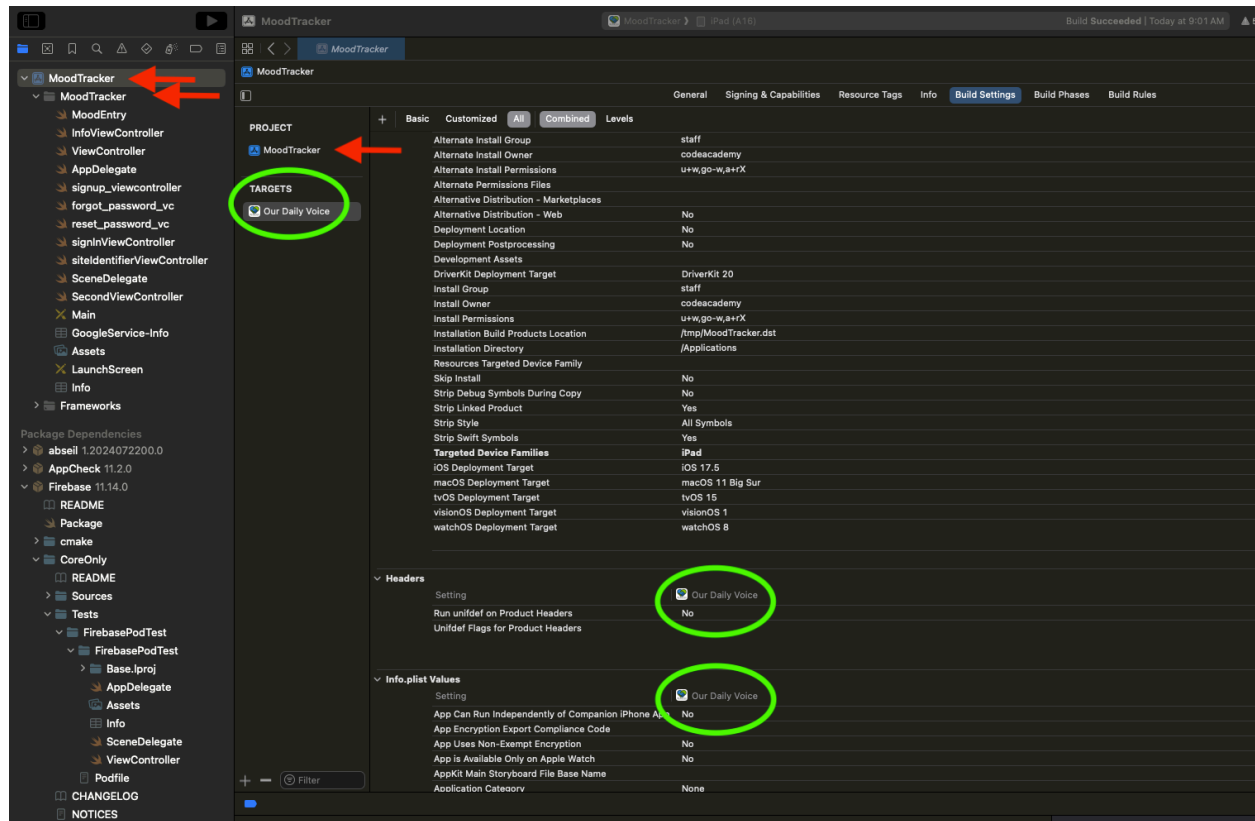

Marketplace app name: Our Daily Voice

Name displayed on the device: MoodTracker

Response:

- I could not find an in-app instance of the name MoodTracker. I did locate that the project's target name was MoodTracker. That has been changed to Our Daily Voice to reflect the name of the application. If this does not sufficiently address the issue, please let me know.
- The project folder is still titled MoodTracker. Will this be an issue? Since the file path within the project is referenced many times, I did not want to change all of those instances unless I was advised that it was necessary.
- Please see Image 1 below for a visual representation of this explanation.

Guideline 2.1 - Information Needed

We're looking forward to continuing our review, but we need more information about your business model and your users to help you find the best distribution option for your app.

Next Steps

Please review the following questions and provide as much detailed information as you can for each question.

1. Is your app restricted to users who are part of a single company? This may include users of the company's partners, employees, and contractors.
2. Is your app designed for use by a limited or specific group of companies?
 - If yes, which companies use this app?
 - If not, can any company become a client and utilize this app?
3. What features in the app, if any, are intended for use by the general public?

4. How do users obtain an account?
5. Is there any paid content in the app and if so who pays for it? For example, do users pay for opening an account or using certain features in the app?
